CHALLENGE TO U. S. POLICY BY GERMANY SEEN

Pittman Charges Nazis With Laying Groundwork For American Action.

SENATORS BACK HULL

See Administration Reassuring Latin-American Nations Before Conference.

WASHINGTON—A charge that Germany is laying the foundation for a challenge to the Monroe Doctrine came today from Senator Pittman (D., Nev.) following Secretary Hull's declaration that the United States would uphold the doctrine

Aroused by a German note rejecting America's interpretation of the policy as "untenable," Pittman and other senators seconded Hull in his assertion that it remains a "basic policy" of this government to prevent "aggression" in the western hemisphere.

Well-informed circles viewed the secretary's statement as one of a series of apparently coordinated administration efforts to reassure other American republics in advance of the Pan American conference in Havana.

Other developments regarded in the same light included:

1. A state department notice to the German embassy that German officials in this country must refrain from public criticism of the government

2. President Roosevelt's deprecation of compromise and appeasement sentiment and his contrast of American and "totalitarian" methods

3. Secretary Hull's statement that the reciprocal trade program remains a fixed policy and that "the only alternative, especially after the war, would be the destructive force of totalitarian autarchy."

Congressional reaction followed the same line. Denying any German implication that the United States is meddling in Europe, Pittman told reporters that such a charge "may

DELAY HARVEST, FARMERS TOLD

Grain Experts Say Moisture Content Too Great For Early Threshing.

Richland county farmers were warned today by Mansfield grain dealers and County Agent George B. Ganyard to delay their wheat harvesting as long as possible to avoid loss of grain due to excessive moisture

Because of the heavy rainfall in recent weeks most of the grain is late in ripening and much of it will be too moist to thresh for two weeks, T. J Hanley, veteran Mansfield miller, explained.

"Farmers will save money by having samples of their grain mositure tested by millers before they start to harvest, especially if they plan to use combines," Hanley said.

Wheat in some sections of the county will be ready to cut and shock by early next week but it will not be ready for harvesting with combines, Hanley added. Grain that tests more than 16 in mositure content is too moist to thresh and store, he pointed out.

County Agent Ganyard said some wheat fields in the county are badly infected with scab, or head blight, causing the heads to turn yellow and the wheat berries to shrivel.

Rapid spread of the scab infection was due to the wet weather this spring, the county agent said The scab is a fungus disease which lives during the winter in corn stubble in the fields and spreads to the wheat early in the summer.

Canyard warned against feeding the blighted grain to hogs, but pointed out that it can be fed to cattle and poultry with no ill effects

Buffalo Youth Bludgeons His Brother and Sister to Death

BUFFALO—(U.P.)—Police said today that Frank Swiatek, 19, confessed bludgeoning his 9-year-old brother and his 11-year-old sister to death in the same way that he killed another brother three years ago.

The bodies of Gordon and Teresa were found by police in a blood-soaked bed in the family flat last night. Frank had walked into a police station to report that they were there.

Frank was paroled about a year ago from Elmira reformatory. He was convicted of manslaughter for killing his brother Leo, 17, with an ax, on Aug 23, 1937.

Deputy Police Commissioner Joseph S. Jordan said last night's tragedy occurred about 10:30 o'clock while the children's mother, Mrs. Cecilia Swiatek Miziolek, and their stepfather, Peter Miziolek, a chemical plant worker, were at a theater.

Police found a blood-stained hammer in a fruit basket on the kitchen window sill. On a table was a note that had been written by Teresa which said: "Mother, wake me up when you come home from the show."

Commissioner Jordan said Frank asserted that he had been "goaded" by his stepfather to kill his sister and brother

Chief of Detectives Arthur D. Britt said that he was convinced the youth is insane, and that his claim that his step-father urged him to commit the crime was "imaginary."

"When he reported the deaths last night he was calm and unruffled," Britt said "He still shows no remorse and I'm convinced that he is insane"

France Loses Destroyer and Gunboat, But Claims Strong Units Reach Safety In Home Ports; Navy Bases Not Disarmed.

BULLETIN

STOCKHOLM, Sweden—(U.P.)—German sources predicted today that a blitzkrieg would be loosed on Great Britain within 10 days, that it would begin with six days of incessant air bombings, with 3,000 planes a day engaged. They said the German planes would tow gliders packed with bombs to be released at random. Equipped with timing apparatus, their wings would collapse, causing them to fall.

BULLETIN

GIBRALTAR—(AP)—Anti-aircraft guns went into action this morning as this British stronghold experienced its second air raid warning of the war, but the all clear signal was sounded after an hour and it was announced there had been no casualties and no damage.

(By Associated Press)

Britain's resolve that the French fleet shall not be added to the Axis navies pitted against her led today to another British-French fight in the Mediterranean, while France declared strong units had reached the safety of her great naval base in the Mediterranean, Toulon.

A dispatch from Vichy, seat of the French government, said the 1,378-ton French destroyer Frondeur went down off the Island of Crete under the fire of British warships. The vessel was running for a home port under terms of the German-French armistice.

The French gunboat Rigult De Genouilly, 1,969 tons, was reported torpedoed off Algiers.

But, said a Toulon dispatch to the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, the 26,500-ton French battleship Strasbourg, presumably the one of that class which escaped the fight with the British at Mers ElKebir, had arrived at Toulon With her, the dispatch said, had arrived five 7,000-ton cruisers, a number of destroyers, gunboats and submarines.

Le Petit Dauphinois said the French naval ministry had informed Berlin that, in view of naval strife with Britain, the French naval bases in the Mediterranean would not be disarmed.

Thus, in effect, the French navy was divided against itself. Some units still were under the sway of the British fleet in Alexandria harbor, others were in British ports, firm in the possession of Britain. The Toulon units, apparently, were set to resist any British attempts to take them.

In the midst of the naval strife in the Mediterranean, the Italian cabinet approved an appropriation of $13,250,000 to strengthen Italy's naval bases.

Germany and Britain lashed at one another further from the air.

The German high command said a British submarine had been sunk in the North sea and oil tanks at Plymouth were fired by aerial bombardment

Britain said her Royal Air Force bombed German landing fields and

OBSERVERS: U. S. Battleships Sail Toward Martinique Area

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The United States was believed today to have dispatched a number of neutrality patrol warships to the general vicinity of French Martinique in the Caribbean to investigate reports that a French naval detachment there is awaiting a British ultimatum.

The American vessels—five destroyers—were said to have been dispatched from the Virgin Islands to observe the Martinique situation at first-hand. Reports from St. Thomas, Virgin Island, said that the ships left yesterday for an unknown destination St. Thomas is about a day's run from Martinique

While most officials declined to comment on the movement of the destroyers, one authoritative source said they "are not bound for the Panama canal."

He added, however, that if the ships actually reach the Martinique area they will act strictly as observers. One of their functions would be to warn American shipping in the vicinity if hostilities developed between the French and British.

The battleships New York and Texas, which sailed out of St. Thomas with the destroyers, were said to be headed in another direction. The two ships are carrying U. S. Naval academy midshipmen on their annual cruise and, it was believed, would not enter any potential danger areas.

SIEGE: Britain Calling Up More Men, Conserving Food

(By United Press)

LONDON—Britain called 250,000 more men into the army today and took new, drastic steps to defend the coast, keep highways open for troops and conserve food in preparation for a German invasion.

For the defense of the British Isles, 1,250,000 men were already under arms, almost 3,000,000 were training in "broomstick" armies and 5,000,000 in all, will be ready to fight by the end of July if the factories can provide them guns.

A defense zone 20 miles deep had been thrown around the entire eastern and southern coasts, 12 regional commissioners had been given absolute powers over the roads to keep them clear of refugees and open for troops when the invaders come and every economic resource was thrown into the fight against any attempts at a starvation blockade.

German air raiders were spewing bombs over the British countryside almost constantly now, although the damage was said to be slight, casualties few and the defense system improving.

This morning the German bombers were blasting at the southeast coast One bomb fell in the grounds

Mexico Prepares for Presidential Election Sunday

NATION TAKES PRECAUTIONS AGAINST RIOT

Cardenas Promises Ballots, Not Bullets, to Decide Vote Outcome.

(By United Press)

MEXICO CITY — Amid reports and rumors of imminent revolution, the men and women of this republic of 20,000,000 elect tomorrow a successor to President Lazaro Cardenas, who today promised that ballots and not bullets would dictate the choice.

Gen. Cardenas was elected by a majority of 2,185,000, July 1, 1934. Under the constitution, a president can serve but one six-year term.

Since yesterday, a ban on the sale of all intoxicating drinks, even light beer, has been in effect and was being strictly enforced. The ban continues through tomorrow.

Four candidates appear on the ballots but the two chief rivals are Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, candidate of the Mexican revolutionary (government) party, and Gen. Juan Andreau Alamazan, an independent.

Camacho is supported by the powerful Mexican Workers' Confederation—CTM, peasant groups, virtually all the state governors and ranking army officers and is favored to win.

Gen. Almazan, one of the wealthiest men in Mexico, draws his support from many sections of the middle-class, business men and some sections of the clergy opposed to the government's harsh attitude to the church.

The heated battle between these candidates has forced the other two contenders far into the background.

They are Gen. Rafael Sanchez Tapia, an independent, and Ramon De LA Pas, a druggist from Mexicali in Lower California who entered the race at the last moment.

Up and Down the Street

Mansfielders are becoming acutely "flag conscious" and the old arguments arose on Fourth of July as to the proper way to display it. Calls were made to the Legion home and to members of the Sons of the American Revolution — all of whom had conflicting opinions. A good way to remember the directions, as put out by the United States war department is this: the field of blue is always up and always to the observer's left when the flag is displayed in a window or against a wall. Thus people living on the same street, but on opposite sides of the street, would display it differently. A flag hung across a street has the blue union up, to the north on an east and west street, and to the east on a north and south street. Simple—if you can remember it. In case of doubt, call the library and ask for the instructions in the World Almanac.

Ziegler was also enthusiastic about the Boy Scouts who helped with every part of the program and the groundkeeper at the Fairground who helped set up the fireworks.

The motorist was Harry Sams, 43, of 317 Wayne street, arrested Thursday night by state highway patrolmen on the Ashland hill.

"You can tell your friends when you get out of jail that the same thing will happen to them if they come into this court on a drunken driving charge," Judge Huston told Sams after sentencing him.

DOCTOR'S WIFE FLEES OFFICE, SUFFERS SHOCK

Police Investigating Crime Hampered by Lack of Known Motive.

AKRON—(AP)—Lack of a known motive hampered police today in their search for the unidentified slayer of Dr. Malcolm D. Miller, 65-year-old Akron physician who was shot as he sat at his office desk.

His assailant strode into the office last evening and fired five times before the doctor, an expert marksman, could take aim with an old, western-type revolver he had pulled from the desk.

Dr. Miller's wife, Ruby, 34, who was substituting for the regular office attendant, fled to another room in the downtown building as the assailant also threatened her.

Detective Inspector Verne Cross quoted Mrs. Miller as saying her husband's slayer asked to see the doctor as he entered the office and was told to make an appointment.

As the doctor's wife suggested an appointment time, the assailant turned and said: "I am going to kill you both."

Only a moment after Mrs. Miller left the office, she heard the fatal shots and then saw the slayer flee. Prostrated by shock, she was taken to a hospital for treatment. Police said four bullets entered the doctor's chest and arm.

Cross reported an examination of Dr. Miller's appointment book failed to yield a clue as to the motive or the slayer's identity. Mrs. Miller described the assailant as being about 30 or 35 years old, and having a small mustache and a piece of adhesive tape on his chin. She had never seen him before, she said.

Dr. Miller, a native of Cambridge, Mass., and graduate of the Harvard Medical school, at one time was associated with the Akron health department. He was divorced from his first wife about eight years ago, and the present Mrs. Miller is his former secretary.

Not That It Matters

Americans Won't Get Into Much of a Stew Pondering Attack on French Fleet

—By JANE WILLIAMS

NOTHING could be more bewildering to Americans than the attitude of France toward her recent ally, Great Britain, and everywhere the Americans who have long held a deep affection for France are asking: "What has happened to the French people and to France?"

The answer is that France is no more: that there remains only a dead, hollow shell from which emanates the voice of Germany's great war lord. If Petain carries a protest against Great Britain's war on the French fleet to the United States, it is not Petain speaking, but Hitler. If France launches a war on England in reprisal for the naval encounter at Oran, it is not the people of France bent on revenge on an erstwhile friend, but Hitler's insatiable rage breaking out in a new form.

Anything that comes out of France from now on, must be regarded as a German move, for there is no France, only an extended Germany.

HITLER entirely misgauges the American frame of mind if he thinks that we Americans will run a temperature over the British taking over the French fleet by force. On the contrary, we have a distinct feeling that the British fleet was waging our battle there at Oran Thursday: for possession of the French ships means almost as much to us as to Great Britain. In possession of Germany they constitute a distinct threat to us; not a theoretical, visionary threat, but a very real menace to our eastern coast.

The culmination of that threat may not be far off. Every American should be prepared for the possibility that it may develop within a few months. Hitler's powerful, long range guns are being entrenched along the entire French coast across the channel from England and when they cut loose it is not improbable that they may blast the English islands out of the Atlantic and force the British government to retreat to Canada, there to continue the war. And then, in spite of everything we can do to prevent it, it becomes our war. Self-preservation will make it so.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S penchant for confusing issues was never more apparent than in his speech yesterday when, in the midst of the greatest defense program this country has ever known, he preached disarmament as one of the essentials of world peace.

It was not an original idea with the president. Warren Harding thought of it in 1923 and called the famous Peace conference to put it into practice. Statesmen from every major nation in the world attended the conference and agreed — outwardly, at least — that the way to peace was to disarm. And so we junked the greater part of our navy, sinking vessels that we could use very well in this present crisis.

Great Britain cut down the size of her navy and stopped her armament program.

And what happened to this beautiful plan for world peace? While the major nations, like dumb ostriches, stood with their heads in the sand, Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia went quietly about the business of building up tremendous war machines. World disarmament is a childishly sweet dream—until a Hitler, a Stalin or a Mussolini comes along.

WENT to a boat party on the Ohio river last week-end, in search of respite from war alarms. Wanted so much to laugh again and found excuse for it at Capt. Billy Bryant's Show Boat, which is tied up at Cincinnati for a few weeks.

Ate peanuts while the Civil war heroine rushed to save her lover from the firing squad. "We're lousy and we stink," Capt. Billy said pleasantly after the show, "but we've more than made a living on the river for 40 years."

Capt. Billy is the second skipper of the Show Boat which was glorified by Edna Ferber. His father, the first Capt. Billy, is past 80 but still lives on his beloved river boat and occasionally takes a part in the show. Young Capt. Billy writes shows, reviving old meller-dramas, and sends audiences into stitches with his curtain speeches. The third generation of players on the Show Boat is represented by Betty Bryant, pretty and intelligent daughter of Young Capt. Billy, who plays leads.

Somehow she reminded me of Edna Ferber's Magnolia as she told me of her romance with the good-looking and talented young man who plays juvenile leads this season. We sat on the deck of the Show Boat while the midnight stars blinked into the black waters of the Ohio river, this modern Magnolia, her sweetheart and I. And I couldn't believe that he was another Ravenal, try as I would, for he isn't the type to break a gal's heart and leave her.

"I wouldn't leave the Show Boat to play leads in New York's finest show," Betty said and there was a pride of heritage in her voice. "I was born and raised on the river and I love the river towns and the sincerity and genuineness of the river people. I hope I can live and die on the boat."

Capt. Billy is an astute showman. He announced "Carmen" as this next week's attraction. "Heavy stuff," he said. "but we just pull up the curtain and let 'er rip. We always manage to finish somehow."

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—TOTBAL! Savvy? Oh, well, I had a hard time myself. Just at first, I mean.

Let's begin at the end. That means There Ought to Be a Law. It is in the new language of GWU-TWUW, or the code of ATAHT. If that is Greek to you, it merely is Warner Bros. to me—but you, too, can play the piano in one easy lesson.

Once upon a time there was a peculiar thing called the English language. In its clumsy fashion it used whole words, and sometimes it even used whole sentences, and people spelled out every word of every sentence. That was in the PS era—or as the antiquarians would put it, in the Pre-Selznick days.

S was a gent who made the longest picture, longest in long green results. The picture was GWTW, or GWU-TWUW. So along came Warner Bros. with their ATAHT, meaning something like the whole present with the prospect of paradise also. So merrily we guess along. Just like "Our Town" folks worrying about the village drunk, I don't know where it'll end.

MAYBE at the U. The U could do it. The U could turn out some tongue-twisters (with the titles they've been having) to send GWU-TWUW and ATAHT scurrying back where they belong. For the U gave us MHMEAN (which is, for benefit of beginners in the course, "Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me"). The U gave us OJHYCL, which Bonnie Baker can explain to those who just came in. From the U came ICGYABLR (of Love's the Only Thing I've Plenty Of, Ba-beet). Any day now the U may pop out with IWGBTMLGSIKH, which they'll translate as I-wanna-go-back-to-my-little-grass-shack-in-Kalasomething-Hawaii, thus rounding out their song cycle with the utmost pain for all. The U, besides, is the home of PASTIENAK, (which looks like a movie title written in GWUTWUW but is really Joe.

Meanwhile, never passs idly by an ETAOIN SHRDLU. It may be that movie you've been waiting to ee.

BETTER practice up. Here are the GWU-TWUW translations of titles of some of the new ones—and no fair peeking at the bottom for the answers.

(1) SUTB. (2) 3 G's and a G. (3) BY. (4) HOV. (5) LVH. (6) IMAN. (7) LOJD. (8) ROFJ. (9) TMG. (10) TRSD. (11) WTDR. (12) BFS. (13) FC. (14) MS. (15) SOOP. (16) SH.

Well, how'd you do? Are you up on GWU-TWUW?

Here they are: (1) Strike Up the Band. (2) Three Gobs and a Girl (the next Harold Lloyd production). (3) Brigham Young. (4) Howards of Virginia. (5) Long Voyage Home. (6) I Married a Nazi. (7) Life of John Doe. (8) Return of Frank James. (9) Too Many Girls. (10) Tom Brown's School Days. (11) When the Daltons Rode. (12) Boys from Syracuse. (13) Foreign Correspondent. (14) Mortal Storm. (15) South of Pago Pago. (16) Sea Hawk.

Silly? Well, that's GWU-TWUW for you.

SECOND NAVAL BATTLE WAGED BY EX-ALLIES

naval bases yesterday and during the night.

At Cairo, the British air force reported successful raids on Italian bases in Africa.

The Italian high command declared British land attacks were repulsed at Forts Capuaao and Birleman in northern Africa.

French Permitted To Keep Navy.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—The high command announced today that permission had been given for all French warships to remain armed as a result of the British-French naval battle at Oran, Algeria.

Article VIII of the German-French armistice terms, which required France to gather all her warships at designated ports and disarm them under German and Italian supervision, was set aside and a formal note to that effect was handed French emissaries at Weisbaden, where the Armistice commissions are in session, the high command said.

Deny Blockade of Martinique.

LONDON—(INS)—Reports that Britain has established a naval blockade at Martinique, French West Indian port, were categorically denied by authoritative British circles today.

Prior to issuance of this denial, British officials withheld comment on the Martinique situation.

(Reports from Washington said British warships were blockading French vessels at Martinique to prevent them from carrying gold and American-made warplanes to France, where they might be seized by Germany.)

At the same time, there was no change in the situation regarding reported rupture of Anglo-French diplomatic relations. The French embassy, like the British government, was still without official confirmation of the report.

The French embassy, furthermore, had received no instructions regarding the matter from the Vichy government in France, but embassy authorities said they believed such instructions are now en route to London.

It was stated authoritatively that Britain has received no communication from Washington regarding Martinique. There was no indication whether or not London has sent a message to Washington regarding the matter.

In unofficial but competent circles the impression prevailed that reports of a British blockade off Martinique apparently emanated from French quarters in Washington.

Back British Blow to Fleet

Head of the rump French government in England, General Charles De Gaulle, shown left in London with an aide, is jubilant over the British strike at the French fleet in an effort to halt its turnover to the Germans. The British struck at the French fleet off Algeria, sunk several units and forced others to surrender. Note the close resemblance to U. S. Screen Player Errol Flynn of De Gaulle's aide at right above.

ute ride from the station down the Wilhelmstrasse to the chancellery.

Flowers were strewn along the streets where the Fuehrer's car passed, but by official order the populace was not permitted to throw bouquets at Hitler.

Bands along the route kept up a continuous playing of the Banden-Weiler march, Hitler's favorite.

The Fuehrer stood in his open car, saluting and smiling.

As he arrived at the Wilhelmplatz, a roar went up from the crowd of thousands which jammed the square.

A few minutes after he arrived at the chancellery, Hitler appeared on the balcony alone and smiled at the crowd below him.

Later he appeared with Grand Admiral Erich Raeder and Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

Then the crowd sang the popular war song, "We Are Sailing Against England."

$1 Contribution Appeal Nets Red Cross Drive $129

The plea of the Red Cross this week for one dollar each from 500 persons, in order to make up a $500 deficit in the $12,000 war relief quota had brought in a total of $129 today.

Included in this sum is $3.21 earned by two small girls eager to aid stricken children of Europe. Judith MacLean, 8, of 500 Lexington avenue, and Barbara Bowles, 525 Crescent road, earned the money by making up attractive score cards and note pads which they sell from three cents to a nickel each. The score cards are hand painted and the pads have art backs on them.

The $129 brought total county contributions up to $11,629, leaving $371 yet to be raised in order to meet the quota.

Throughout the nation $17,547,441 has been raised on the $20,000,000 quota. Only two states, Montana and Nevada, have gone over the top so far.

Conserves Food to Prepare For German Invasion as Bombs Fall.

of a rectory, another damaged some houses. Only one minor casualty was reported. British fighters shot down one German bomber and chased others at sea.

But while the British stood firm on the home front, they faced new problems throughout the far-flung empire. The British commonwealth of nations was fighting alone now. It had the additional job of hunting down French warships throughout the world, and blocking the French coast to keep goods from reaching Germany.

Gibraltar had been bombed, although without effect; Italian troops were making inroads into the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan; difficulties with Japan were imminent over the shipment of goods to Nationalist China; and conditions were uncertain at most French possessions, including French Indo-China, from where British ships now were barred.

The seizure or destruction of a large part of the French fleet had eliminated one hazard—the possibility of Germany and Italy getting the ships—but the battle for French warships at Oran, Algeria, had aroused the hostility of France's Premier Marshal Philippe Petain and his government and raised the necessity for Britain to redistribute her fleet.

(It was officially announced at Oran today that as a result of the British naval attack, the French battleships Dunkerque, Bretagne and Providence and the destroyer Mogador were aground and badly damaged and that 1,000 French sailors were dead, wounded or missing.)

The naval action, and intensified air raids on Germany gave evidence that the British were moving to the offensive while strengthening the home defenses.

An air ministry communique late yesterday said that during Thursday night and yesterday the British had bombed the German naval bases of Wilhelmshaven and Kiel, Emden, aircraft factories at Wesendorf and Bremen, and German-occupied airports at Amsterdam and Brussels. Returning fliers said they had blasted the naval docks at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven for an hour; that they had blown up docks and hit the aircraft factory at Bremen and exploded huge oil tanks at Hamburg.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, JULY 6, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and warn the children against the danger of recklessness.

Picayunish profiteering on merchandise specially taxed for defense purposes is most likely to arouse public ire.

Every criminal act is more than a mere offense against the law, it is an admission of individual inability to be trusted with self-government.

Safety and Pleasure Combined

NOW that Mansfield has experienced another "safe and sane" Fourth of July, free from the accidents and injuries common to old style celebrations when firecrackers and other kinds of explosives were freely sold and used, there should be no question about the advisability of continuing this new method of observing Independence day.

The thousands who visited the Fairground Thursday afternoon and evening to enjoy the entertainment program sponsored by the Public Parks association, and the other thousands who witnessed the evening fireworks display from other parts of the city, amply evidence public interest in this form of city-wide celebration.

Those of the Public Parks association who have devoted time and effort to this enterprise, and who are responsible for its success, are to be complimented on their manifestation of civic spirit along lines which not only contribute to public safety but also give fitting recognition to a great national holiday.

If Mansfield's example in banning the sale of fireworks for private use and in providing an attractive community celebration, with supervised handling of elaborate fireworks displays, inspires other cities to adopt a similar program, even greater benefits will accrue from this local initiative.

There is also the possibility that further emphasis on the subject may bring state legislators to a realization of the need for a law to stop the sale and use of fireworks in Ohio, except for properly supervised public displays, so as to prevent sale at roadside stands just outside of cities, as is now common practice.

Registration of Aliens

THE three and a half million aliens in the United States have four months to visit the nearest postoffice and get themselves registered and fingerprinted. As the law requiring this action goes into effect, American citizens have several important things to consider.

One of these is their own records. General registration of births is a comparatively recent practice. Many adult Americans today may find themselves having to prove their own citizenship without the help of birth certificates. They will be wise to find out about this at once and take whatever steps are necessary to "prove that they were born," a little matter about which the late Will Rogers once had considerable difficulty.

Another point for thought and honesty was mentioned by President Roosevelt when he signed the registration bill.

> "The alien registration act of 1940 should be interpreted and administered as a program designed not only for the protection of the country but also for the protection of the loyal aliens who are its guests. Most of the aliens in this country came here because they believed in and had faith in the principles of American democracy, and they are entitled to and must receive the full protection of the law."

Aliens who made legal entry into this country and who have been law-abiding and self-sustaining residents of the communities in which they live are entitled to the friendly and considerate treatment which exemplifies American democracy. They are potential good citizens and should be encouraged to, as quickly as possible, meet requirements for naturalization.

Oddities of 'Normal' Weather

OFFICIAL weather reports for June, over a large part of the country, furnish an example of how deceptive accurate statistics may be.

As millions of citizens know, June this year was completely unlike the June the poets have sung. Farmers trying to plant, housewives trying to get the washing dry, holiday-makers trying to have a picnic, business people trying to keep their street clothes pressed, vacationists trying to take sun baths, and a host of other harassed mortals, know that it rained often during the month of June. Perfect days were indeed rare.

Yet look at the weather bureau records. Temperature almost normal; precipitation deficient until the end of the month and then showing only a fraction of an inch of excess rainfall!

How reconcile such conflicting facts? One answer is that, although the total rainfall for the month was little more than normal, it came in frequent small installments instead of a few large ones. The result was that the ground was never dry between rains. Instead of having a day or two of rain followed by a day or two of warm sunshine and blue sky, the sun and rain alternated swiftly almost every day. "Normal" rainfall, too, would mean a considerable gain over recent years.

Problem of Child Refugees

A GALLUP poll shows this country deeply sympathetic toward the plight of children in Europe. Apparently 5,000,000 American families are willing to take refugee youngsters into their homes for the duration of the war.

But human generosity on such a scale demands organization and planning. Two things stand immediately in the way of taking even a small percentage of these children. Legal red tape and rigid immigration restrictions make it difficult for most of them to enter this country. There is also the problem of rescue ships to transport them.

Canada expects 5,000 child refugees to arrive during July, and plans to take others later. Many will be British boys and girls, but these will also be Dutch, Belgian and French children who sought safety in the British Isles.

The children of Europe today will be the adults of Europe tomorrow. For purely selfish reasons Americans ought to do as much for them as possible, to give them faith in decency and human kindness. Without some degree of normal and happy childhood, these children may grow up embittered and hopeless, easy victims of the ideologies which menace democracy.

With customary versatility, Columbia university is offering a summer course for school janitors—but why confine the course to "school" janitors?

The point has been reached where almost everybody is against war—except between Germany and Russia.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—George K. Arthur, who used to be half of the once famous Dane and Arthur, comedy team (remember "Rookies"?) is a familiar figure along the Broadway shops, though he is no longer identified with the theater. You see him almost every day going into and coming out of office doors, wearing no hat, a leather brief case clasped under his arm, selling insurance. I ran into him this morning in front of the AP building, reading the war bulletins, an aura of ineffable dejection on his face. The bulletins told of bombing raids on England, where he was born and lived as a kid before the fates made and then eclipsed him as a star.

OUR neck of the suburban woods, where we hang our hat at night, is quite a center of activities for the Scouts. There is a troop on almost every street, and one of the things they have to learn in their woodcraft lessons is how to cook an adequate meal. For years the courts of honor have questioned each newcomer to the scouts on how, and what, they have prepared. This is purely a matter of routine, for no scout in our neighborhood has ever been known to cook anything but a steak. Scout after scout, at these courts, steps forward and says "Steak."

But there was an innovation to this procedure recently. The young Negro youths of the town have a fine Scout troop, boasting attendance for the year of 100 per cent. They too came before the court to explain their progress in cooking in the woods. And without exception 32 husky young Negro scouts solemnly cried, "Pork Chops."

LOUIS BROMFIELD, between supervising the new house he is building on his Ohio farm, and hurrying off to Los Angeles to confer with studio officials concerning the filming of one of his stories, found time to give away all the money (and it is a considerable amount) that is to his credit in French banks. This sum has been donated to French relief.

Another author who donates immense shares of his royalties to needy institutions is Robert Sherwood, whose latest play, "There Shall Be No Night," is the outstanding attraction of the drama season on Broadway. Every cent of his royalties is being turned over to the relief of the distressed civilians of the invaded countries.

"A dame left a package in my cab," he explains, "and it turned out to be $75,000 worth of jewelry. Boy, was she glad to get it back."

SHOULDER ARMS!

Move Toward Collectivist Plan

By HARLEY L. LUTZ
Professor of Public Finance, Princeton University.

THE movement to destroy cherished American institutions by substituting a highly centralized, rigidly controlled collectivist system is not confined to the avowed enemies of democracy nor to the undercover agents of foreign totalitarian states who are now so active, and so unmolested, in our midst.

This movement has been proceeding openly, for years, under governmental auspices. It has had the approval of a vast number of citizens who have been quite unaware of the final objective.

The deficit policy, the immense increase of the public debt, and the open competition of government with business are all evidences of the progress of our own Fifth Column.

Further evidence is the legislation which has prevented the flow of capital into enterprise, and which has imposed severe burdens of taxation and regulation upon business. With the progressive disintegration of the forces of private enterprise has gone the argument that government must act because individuals will not.

A RECENT expression of the policy that has done so much to usher in the collectivist state is the following passage from the president's "fireside chat" on defense, of May 26, 1940:

"I know that private business cannot be expected to make all the capital investment required for expansions of plants and factories and personnel which this program calls for at once. It would be unfair to expect industrial corporations to do this, when there is a chance that a change in international affairs may stop future orders.

"Therefore, the government of the United States stands ready to advance the necessary money to help provide for the enlargement of factories, the establishment of new plants, the employment of thousands of necessary workers, the development of new sources of supply for the hundreds of materials required, the development of quick transportation of supplies."

There has been a widespread hallucination regarding federal money. It holds that the federal government has money of its own which it can lend out or spend. It fails to realize that all money which the federal government has it gets by borrowing or taxing.

It is absurd that the government should take money from the people merely in order to advance it to them again. Private resources are ample for the financing of defense undertakings. What is urgently needed is the removal of those barriers which now prevent the flow of these resources. Strangely enough, nothing is being done about the barriers. On the contrary, legislation is being pushed to put the federal government more completely in control of economic life.

A DANGEROUS example of such legislation is a bill which authorizes the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to create other corporations, supply them with capital, and lend money to them for operation. Such corporations may be set to acquire strategic materials, to build plants and operate them, using these strategic or any other raw materials.

To any reasonable reader, this scheme contains enough dynamite to blow the system of private enterprise into small bits. A whole series of subsidiary corporations can be established, each authorized to engage in some line of business deemed important for the national defense, and to draw upon the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the necessary funds.

If this measure is enacted, there will be nothing to prevent the creation of corporations to construct and operate factories to produce airplanes, ordnance, explosives, trucks, tanks and other war equipment including shoes and uniforms. Other corporations can be set up to build and operate power plants, warehouses, shipyards, railroads and other transportation facilities.

It is no defense of the bill to say that all of these things will not be done. The answer is that this bill reflects a policy of the administration, and that pressure may be expected to exercise the powers it confers over as wide a front as possible.

The inspiration of such a scheme can come only from an overpowering desire to extend and develop the government participation in business without regard to the effects of such development upon the private business. This is precisely the technique of communism.

Listen, World!

Down On Hester Street.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SO, WHEN the day had cooled a little, I went down to Hester street, as I always do when I come to New York.

You know that tangle of cluttered, clamorous runways—Baxter, Delancy, Orchard, Division, Canal, the Bowery, where the houses shoulder each other like a huddle of gossipy old hags. Twilight oozing over the East river bringing the sour-salt smell of rotting piles and sewery tide. Twilight sifting over the scabby walls and slatterny windows where laughing, fat women overflow the old sills and the bedding lies heaped on the sooty fire-escapes.

Sordid? That depends on how you see it. Banana skins in the gutters. Rags and filth spilling out of the dim halls with their scabby, brown paint. Poverty everywhere, in a deeper, darker scum. And if that's all you see, it is sordid. But I see more than that on Hester Street, Baxter, Orchard and Delancy. I see something that draws me back, year after year, and fills me with warm content.

For there's love and laughter, and hope and pride along those cluttered ways, such as no money can buy. The children are playing in the gutters beside the banana peels, droves of shouting, happy youngsters, rosy cheeked, brown-legged — tumbling down the old stairs, boiling out of the narrow doors, scuttling between the honking taxis.

The little shops burn bright in the deepening dusk . . . their cheap wares glowing in warm tiles of color, bright red and violet, green and orange and blue. A yellow cat sprawls and yawns beside a pile of tomatoes. Two girls giggle and whisper across a push-cart heaped with rayon remnants. Lovers, their arms about each other, move slowly as sleep walkers to the corner movie.

In every doorway, the old folks sit and talk. Ma rocks content in her easy chair, her plump hands crossed above her rounded belly, her kind eyes mothering the street. Pa squats and nods upon the stoop, his shirt still dark with smears of sweat. The neighbors saunter, stopping here and there. The slow talk tangles with the children's shouts.

Rags everywhere. Patched, slazey shoes. Smeared shirts and aprons . . . worn, work-stained hands. The warrens of the poor. And yet, in all those miles of shoddy tenements, you'll hardly find a block without at least one shop that shows a wedding gown! Cheap things they are, those gowns—but in the kindly night they're radiant as the stars! And passing by them, young eyes yearn, stirred by the everlasting miracle of love.

I think those wedding gowns are why I go, each year, to Hester Street. They are such brave young things to shine like that, above the stress and strain of poverty. . . . And one remembers suddenly that Life goes surely on, and Beauty lives, despite our bungling.

Down Hester Street . . . down streets filled with poor Jews. Such Jews as they are driving out of Germany or starving in the hells of concentration camps.

Yet Hester Street has love and laughter which might shame us all. And Hester Street has wedding gowns and babes. And out from Hester Street have come great brains and hearts . . . and songs to brighten all America. I think God must have special love for Hester Street. His baby once was just a little Jewish boy.

Timely Editorial

Upholding Communism.

Action of the faculty members of Antioch College in criticizing the Dies committee for what they term a campaign for suppression of the Communist party is extremely bad taste at this time.

There is no justification for becoming maudlin about a subversive group whose avowed purpose is the destruction of every institution and principle upon which this nation has been built.

Communism is repugnant. The cells which are operating in this country are fostered and sometimes even supported by Stalin.

Communism is one of the active fifth columns operating in the United States. Anyone who gives support or encouragement to this movement cannot be regarded as having the interests of the nation at heart.

The Dies committee has done notable work in unmasking the enemies of democracy. More power to it, despite the anguished howls of any pink-whiskered professors. —Ohio State Journal.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Deserving a Song.

This is my realm; my kitchen: here
I am the queen. I keep
It shining. Bright and silver are
My pans, each day I sweep.

The floor until it is as clean
As it can be, I let
No dust or dirt rest hereabouts,
My mind disturb and fret.

It is the cozy place, this realm
Of mine, the center spot
Of my small house. Here happiness
Sings in each pan and pot.

Here children fresh from school throw down
Their books, here husband gives
His morning and his evening kiss,
Here homely beauty lives.

My kitchen, you might never find
Its glamour, but to me
It holds the magic and the charm
Deserving minstrelsy.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE one-time "big three" contenders for the Republican presidential nomination all pledged support this week to Wendell Lewis Willkie, the amateur politician who took just six ballots to down them all at the Philadelphia convention.

Thomas E. Dewey said he would do anything he was "called on" to do to help Willkie and the party. Robert Taft and Arthur Vandenberg also backed him. Meantime many a smaller fry made it known that he was an "original Willkie man."

Willkie, who met stubborn opposition from old-line politicians at the convention, found himself boss of the whole party.

He was just about allowed to pick his own Vice-Presidential nominee (Senator McNary of Oregon).

Willkie Quits a Job.

He told the convention:

"I stand before you without a single pledge, promise or understanding of any kind except for the advancement of your cause and the preservation of American democracy. . . .

"Now I'm going to sleep for a week."

But before taking his nap Willkie toured Philadelphia newspaper offices.

At the Public Ledger he shook hands with everybody, including office boys and ink-stained printers. In the Bulletin office he thrust his hand at the editor and said, "I'm Willkie."

The startled editor replied, "I recognize you from your picture."

Willkie rested with an ocean cruise. On his return he resigned his $75,000-a-year job as president and director of Commonwealth & Southern, a utilities corporation.

British papers interpreted Willkie's nomination as the end of American isolationism.

The same thought worried Senators Wheeler of Montana and Johnson of Colorado. Both forecast "a new and great anti-war party" if the Democrats follow the Republicans in not specifically promising to keep American soldiers at home.

At Home

Americans Begin to Pay.

Defense taxes brought Europe's war into American homes July 1.

Cigarets cost ½ cent a pack more, liquor an additional 75 cents a gallon, beer $1 a barrel more. It all goes for guns and battleships.

Movie goers pay a 10 per cent tax on tickets costing more than 21 cents. (Instead of more than 41 cents).

The same day these taxes went into effect President Roosevelt called for "steeply graduated" taxes on excess arms profits.

The defense program went ahead. The navy ordered 45 new warships, to cost nearly $500,000,000, and the army got orders to organize an armored corps of 18,000 men similar to Germany's "panzer" divisions.

Work was started on a third set of locks for the Panama canal.

Official figures showed that, even not counting the newly-ordered ships, the U. S. navy already is the largest in the world. Latest figures:

U. S.—395 completed ships, 1,327,320 tons.

Great Britain—313 ships, 1,277,189 tons.

Elephantine Appetites.

Philadelphia's eating places, reports the city's restaurant association, handled 15 per cent more business during the GOP convention than they did at the Democratic convention of 1936. Businessmen who put up the $200,000 to get the convention were repaid about 60 times. Here are some statistics on GOP consumption: 90,000 hot dogs, 140,000 bottles of soda pop, 20,000 meals.

'Sailfish' an Alias.

An epic among American naval rescues was the plucking of 32 men from the submarine Squalus off Portsmouth, N. H., a year ago. Later the vessel was brought up and reconditioned. This week the ship, renamed the Sailfish, dived again, near the spot of the disaster. On board were five survivors of the sinking. One was Lloyd Maness, who pushed shut the bulkhead which trapped 26 men but probably saved the other 32.

Abroad

Mexicans Vote on Regime.

For six years Lazaro Cardenas, quiet, humble Indian serving as Mexico's president, has shaken his nation with reforms to help peons and workers and to expropriate foreign oil properties. Under Mexico's constitution, he is not allowed to succeed himself. So the nation's 3,000,000 voters will pick his successor this week-end.

The two candidates are Generals Camacho (pledged to carry out Cardenas' policies) and Almazan (pledged to undo Cardenas' works). Both have thumped for co-operation with the U. S. Although the campaign was turbulent, Cardenas trotted out his army and promised that the people's vote would be respected.

Oriental James Monroe.

Preoccupation of Western powers (especially Britain) with war presents Japan with a "golden opportunity" and she must assume a "strong attitude," leading Nipponese generals decided this week. And Japanese Foreign Minister Arita in proclaiming a sort of oriental Monroe Doctrine, warned that the future of East Asia (French Indo-China) and the South Seas (Dutch East Indies, Philippines) was a "matter of grave concern to Japan." In Washington it was expected the U. S. definitely would not concur.

Balbo's Beard.

Back in 1933 young Italians took to raising beards because their idol, dashing, black-eyed Italo Balbo, had one. He had just returned from a triumphant mass flight to Chicago and Fascists suggested he would make a fine successor to Mussolini. But just as abruptly, Balbo beards were discreetly removed, for Il Duce had shipped Balbo off to Libya as governor.

He died there last week-end. Officials, in calling for national mourning, explained vaguely that he had been killed in air battle. The British foreign office promptly insisted: "Marshal Balbo did not perish in combat with the R. A. F. He has consistently been opposed to . . . harnessing Italy to Hitler's war machine. His death . . . recalls similar accidents in the past, in particular the death at Warsaw (last fall) of (German) General Von Fritsch, the opponent of Hitler's home and foreign policy." Germans said Von Fritsch died in battle.

France: During and After.

AP Newsman Taylor Henry, who won fame with his dispatches from France during the "total war," reached Spain this week and disclosed:

France's casualties in the disastrous final month were 1,500,000 men. . . . On June 12 General Weygand told the cabinet the army had "only cartridges enough to last three more days."

In some sectors Germans outnumbered French as much as 5 to 1. . . . French leaders blame defeat on (1) lack of equipment, (2) lack of manpower, (3) lack of determination.

Parisians are trying to be cheerful, but well-dressed persons were said to be begging from strangers. . . . At least 1,200,000 persons were reported jobless in Paris alone.

Hunger Ahead.

Farmers in the Balkan area see nothing but gloom in the weather reports.

A terrible winter was followed by late frosts, then floods. In Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and old Rumania this year's corn and wheat yield has been cut 35 per cent.

The Balkans generally produce most of Europe's bread wheat, but now even this meager crop is threatened with mildew.

None of the nations at war can raise nearly enough for itself. The occupied nations—Poland, Norway, Denmark and Belgium—never were self-sufficient.

Experts agree this adds up to a threat of stark, horrible hunger for most of Europe.

Report on Snite.

Infantile paralysis victim Frederick Snite, Jr., has lived by artificial respiration longer than any other human (four years). This week his doctor—to put an end to conflicting tales about Snite's health—gave his first public report. His revelations were:

Muscles—"Very slow, but definite improvement" in those not totally paralyzed. Snite's legs, back and abdomen are stronger; he can walk across a room with aid.

How Snite Lives—During the day only a small respirator covers his chest. He eats with an appetite and enjoys life. He is married, expects to become a father in three months. His paralysis won't affect the child.

Prospects—Only a miracle can ever free Snite completely from a respirator. "His heart has been strained by the incessant pull of the respirator," but this strain may be offset by the less-than-normal strain caused by his inactive life. "Barring respiratory disease, or complications of the kidneys, he might outlive all of us."

Non-Combatants.

Anxious lest Britain's children be slaughtered in the terrifying attack Germany is expected to launch, British authorities are rushing plans to ship 5 to 16-year-olds to the dominions. The first are expected in Canada in about a week. U. S. officials are wondering if we cannot play host to about 20,000, now that new quotas on immigrants have been opened. (Britain's annual quota is 65,000.) On July 4, the Allied Relief Fund, headed by Winthrop Aldrich, started a U. S. campaign to raise $5,000,000 to shelter the youngsters.

In Short

Explosion: Bomb found in British pavilion at New York world's fair exploded outside, killing two policemen and injuring five.

Injured: Former French Premier Paul Raynaud, in an auto accident near the Riviera.

Sentenced: To three years in prison, M. L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher, for income tax evasion. Earlier he had agreed to pay the U. S. $8,000,000.

Threatened: Norway, that she would be placed "fully" under Nazi control and administration if her parliament did not renounce King Haakon and his refugee government, now in London.

Ohio Anecdotes

'Rise and Fall of the Mustache.'

A MAN whose career ran the gamut from clergyman to gun-runner, Robert Burdette, author and self-styled "physician of the Merry Heart," is best-remembered for his famous lecture on "The Rise and Fall of the Mustache." He delivered it nearly 5,000 times in nearly all states.

Burdette spent his boyhood days in Cummingsville, O., and later wrote many interesting tales of the little village. He was born at Greensboro, Pa.

While enrolled at Cooper Institute, New York, he embarked for Cuba in 1869 on the "Lilian" on a gun-running expedition and was wounded transporting arms to insurgents.

Burdette counted among his friends Henry Ward Beecher, Mark Twain, Robert Ingersoll and James Whitcomb Riley. His last writing was "Drums of the 47th," an account of his Civil war experiences.

Schedule of Events

SUNDAY

Helpers Circle, First Lutheran church—picnic.

L'Amici club — Mohican state park, annual family picnic.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, July 7.

Sunday's horoscope is an adverse one, excepting for sentimental or emotional factors of romantic character. This may be sudden and surprising but accompanied by some measure of disaffection, disappointment or entanglements concerning messages or letters.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to have a year of some delays, disappointments and frustrations, with anxiety in their financial or credit status. Offsetting this, there is augury for promotion.

A child born on this day should be alert, talented and fairly ambitious with originality and some form of unusual ingenuity.

For Monday, July 8.

Monday's astrological forecast is for very active conditions in the social, domestic, artistic or affectional relations. In the latter, there may arise a surprising situation, probably sensational, spectacular or unconventional.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of conflicting situations with opportunity for lucrative connections with large groups, political or fraternal, but with emotional or romantic experiences, sensational or irregular.

A child born on this day may be shrewd, subtle and versatile, but erratic, impulsive and unconventional. It will be goodhearted and sociable as well as romantic.

Drooping - Flesh Troublesome

By MME. QUI VIVE

When a woman has a silent conference with the lady in the looking glass and observes drooping flesh along the jaw-line, she is pretty likely to come to the conclusion that her petals are falling. The first grey hairs didn't bother her. Or the slight thickening of the figure that comes at midchannel time. But soft, flabby tissues get her down. She fears that, in due course of time, she will carry a wattle under her chin. Prospects are not cheering.

These conditions do not come overnight. If the poor dear had done her beauty chores she might have kept the youthful facial contour. Also she may have overindulged in the good things of the table, taken on adipse upholstery which has disappeared, leaving the flesh flabby and the skin coat too large. She can, in this case, resort to plastic surgery, which will take up the slack. Or she can have vitalizing facial treatments at the beauty shop and do her home work faithfully, which will help to correct the sad state of affairs. At least she can keep from taking on more tissue billows.

Many women of the old school fancy that massage isn't a safe method of complexion treatment; that it is as likely to tear down as to rebuild. That's true enough. Everything depends upon the kind of movements used. Fat cells can be dissolved by pinching and rolling. Fibers can be strengthened and tissues made more normal by brisk patting and tapping. Follow the right method and you'll get gratifying results.

Tired facial muscles will perk up if flattened fingers smooth them in upward sweeps. But remember this: keep the muscles relaxed. Click your teeth together, have the face tense and you are wasting your time. Use a heavy cream, work on a clean surface. Before starting the treatment, wash the face well with soap and warm water.

Do you remember when you did five-finger exercises on the piano? If you are annoyed with soft facial tissues, try these same exercises on them:

Throw the head far back. Place each little finger on the tip of the chin. Do a quick hammering, finishing with the thumbs. The flesh will glow, showing that the blood streams have heard the cry for help and are responding. Stepping up circulation means that nutriment will come to the cells.

Ten minutes of slapping, smoothing and tapping, then a quick friction with an ice cube. In the morning use cold water and an astringent.

Affair Fetes Recent Bride At Miss Bair's

Friends Entertain With Shower Honoring Mrs. Ben Wigton.

THE first in a series of nuptial parties honoring Mrs. Ben Wigton, who was Miss Doris Marshall before her marriage in Greenup, Ky., on June 23, was given yesterday evening at the home of Miss Mary Bair, 122 Helen avenue. The Misses Susan Bell Paste and Kathryn Fighter were associate hostesses.

The affair was a dessert-bridge, and the guests were seated at a long table for the refreshment course. A bouquet of white summer flowers centered the table, and individual nosegays in pastel shades marked the places of the guests.

The diversion was in play at two tables, Mrs. John Courtney and Miss Mary Werner were recipients of the score prizes, which they gave to the honoree. The guests presented Mrs. Wigton with a shower of bathroom gifts, and she received an electrical gift from the hostesses. Miss Betty Todd, an Alpha Xi Delta sorority sister of Miss Bair at Wittenberg college in Springfield, was an out-of-town guest at the party.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKE AN ENTRY FOR HIM

If your partner's suit is on the way to establishment against a hostile No Trump contract, you should usually bend every energy to helping him score the remnants of it. Frequently the fate of the contract will depend on whether he has sufficient entries to get in the lead after he has one or more cards of it set up. So on every trick that comes along, your job is to examine the situation closely and see if there is anything you can do to help make an entry for him, even throwing away possible winners of your own at times in order to promote his lower cards.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 NT	Pass	4 NT

Since no slam conventions were being used, South passed North's invitational bid of 1-No Trumps, and West made the good old-fashioned lead of his fourth-best spade. East won with the A and returned the 8 to the K. The heart 3 brought the 7 from West and the Q from dummy.

East studied the trick. It dawned on him that, if the 3 was a singleton, his partner had the A and 9. So he himself played the 10 on North's Q. When the K was then led from dummy, East put on the J, and declarer's goose was cooked.

West got that trick with the A and led a third spade, which North won. When a third heart was led from dummy, East had the 8 to play on it, so that West's 9 was a winner of the third trick for the side, and the spade 6 then set the contract, which was just one trick too high.

If East had played his heart 8 on either of the first two tricks of that suit, he would have won the third trick instead of his partner, and the thirteenth spade never could have been gathered in for the setting trick.

♥ A 6 2	♥ 9 8 6

If South bid 1-No Trump, North 3-No Trumps, and you have the East hand shown, what do you know about your partner's and declarer's holdings in the suit opened, if your partner led the spade Q? If the heart J? If the diamond K? If the club Q?

FOREST FURY

By OREN ARNOLD

(Copyright 1940)

CHAPTER XIX

She put on a convenient dressing robe over her pajamas and stepped into her comfortable old mules, reminding herself again that she was quite alone in this big log building, and that it in turn was isolated at the edge of a road in a vast forest. Nearest neighbor, a ranch home, was more than three miles away. In that moment Rosemary Taylor would have given her birthright and soul for the comforting rattle of an elevated train or the homey rumbling of the subway under Central Park West. There she could have pressed a button for the apartment night man, or just yelled, if necessary for the police.

Here, however, she went to a window and peered out. Her light of course made the outside one solid blot of blackness. She held her breath in order to listen, leaning out a little.

"Hello!" she called tentatively, into the night.

Nobody answered, but the moaning came again.

She stood there and thought for a full minute, trying to reason it out. Was it Cissy, the pet mountain lion that Walpi pampered, and that she herself had come to adore? No. Cissy never moaned. Anyway Cissy was with Walpi, for Walpi liked to show her off to his Indian friends. Cissy rode in the back seat of Walpi's and Pola's old touring car.

Rosemary opened the door of her room that led down the inside stairs to the main floor of the store. She peered down tentatively; nothing but night shadows there, and the peculiarly mixed smells of her merchandise. She stepped out. Something seemed to warn her to move warily, quietly. The groaning noise came again. Distinctly now it came from the rear of the store itself, perhaps from one of the two rooms that formed the wing occupied by Walpi and Pola.

"I must keep a gun upstairs," Rosemary told herself, stepping down silently. "And make Sue teach me to shoot."

She moved to her store's gun case and took down first a repeating rifle. Then she set it back and took a holster with a pistol, a new .38 which Bob King had loaded and tested once, and loaded again.

"About all you have to do to shoot a pistol," Bob had said, "is pull the trigger."

It rested cold and heavy in Rosemary's hand.

By coincidence, at the same 11 o'clock hour when Rosemary was writing a note to her former employer in New York, Dr. Archibald Montgomery was writing a letter to New York too. His was addressed to his mother. It had little to do with business, yet he regarded it as the most important letter he had ever written.

"Mother, you told me once that it would come unexpectedly," he was tapping it out rapidly on a portable typewriter, "and I would then see how it had been brewing in my heart all along. I must admit that it has happened as you predicted.

"The full realization came to me today when she was helping me dress my wounds. (They were minor scratches, so do not be alarmed). Her tenderness and thoughtfulness, and her exquisite beauty withal, were so forcibly brought to my attention that I knew all at once that I love her. I can see, now, that I have loved her from the beginning, since she tossed me the end of her overcoat to pull me out of that swollen stream. I must, by the way, reimburse her for her coat. I have been negligent indeed.

"Mother, am I too old to ask her to marry me? As you know, I shall be 29 in a few weeks, and she can not be more than 22 or 23 perhaps. Should not man and wife be the same age? I have given so little thought or attention to these things but I am determined to be fair. Of course I have yet to discuss it with her—indeed, I must set myself now to some conscious wooing. I will get into the essential business of courtship, including flowers and candies and parties, I suppose. I must say the prospect, while delightful, frightens me considerably also because I am so inexperienced. If you, Mother, could suggest——"

In the end it was a very long letter and a very sincere one. A stranger or even a friend reading it would have been amused. To Monty himself it was an outpouring of his most sacred thoughts.

Rosemary! To know her and love her, and hope for her! The very idea was exalting to him. And frightening. He had no assurance that he could make love to her in a satisfactory way. He felt far from confident. For years now his relations with young women had been across a professor's desk; factual, impersonal, scholarly. Very vaguely he realized that some day he must marry and settle down, for that would make him a better professor, but in the odd moments when he had considered her at all he had envisioned his wife as some pleasant, capable helpmate in his studies and about his home. Certainly he had never imagined a vivacious girl with cheeks that were plump and pink, with mouth that seemed to demand kissing, and with a lower lip that tucked in often in a devilish amusement which her eyes also reflected. Rosemary! How lovely a name!

He sat there over the table in his boarding-house room mooning as if he were 16, although he did not realize that. He thought back to every moment spent with her. Sometimes, to be sure, others had been along, notably Bob King. Now King might be a consideration here. But no. No, King was not her type, not of her background; King was not anywhere near the quality of girl that Rosemary was. He was hardly to be considered.

Or was he?

Monty swallowed, trying to think that out. King was a virile, aggressive sort. And that confounded forest ranger uniform—"

He recalled the episode of the saddle blanket, too. And the deprecatory attitude King had taken about building a fire to broil steaks. Come to think of it, also, Rosemary was often seen on King's arm, laughing and talking gaily with him. King doubtless was the younger man; nearer Rosemary's own age. It had been King who lowered the rope to him this morning at the Grand Canyon, and King who spoke before the president, and so—yes, of course, King must be considered as a rival for Rosemary's hand. Of course the man could not be blind to Rosemary's extraordinary beauty and charm!

"I must fight aggressiveness with aggressiveness!" Monty suddenly whispered to himself, there in his room tonight.

He clinched his fist and made a motion as if to pound the table, then sat still thinking a minute or two more. He could not be dominated by King or anybody else, uniformed or otherwise. He himself wanted Rosemary. Then, ipso facto, he must pay court to her as a determined gentleman. And how were such things done? Let's see, candy and flowers of course were a necessity, he had observed in college, so he would start with them.

He glanced at his watch. It showed 11:10.

He took his hat and topcoat down, sealed his letter and started out. One must not delay. Once planned, a campaign should be launched quickly and positively. That was only common sense. Perhaps he could find some stores open even at night.

Flagstaff had only one florist shop that he had noted, a small place, and when he walked to it now it was closed of course. It had not even a light inside it.

He walked another six blocks to the main corner of town and found a drugstore still open. The clerk was alone, reading a magazine.

"Oh, I say—could I, ah, inspect some candy?" Monty began, diffidently.

"How?" The clerk wasn't sure he understood.

"Some candy, please. Candy."

"Sure. Right here by the cashier, mister. Five-cent bars on the left, ten-centers on the right. Want 'em for your kids?"

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

But, suddenly, my nerves were steel-tipped instead of frayed, and my hand was as steady as Lillian's as we took our little silencer pistols in our right hands. With a swift movement, Lillian turned to the bank of rocks and earth at our backs which the thicket screened, grasped a handful of damp earth, handed part to me, and daubed her own face with the dirt which was left, rubbing it in as she did so until the effect was one of repellent grime.

I followed her example faithfully, and when we looked at each other for approval, an involuntary grin twisted our lips in spite of the danger coming toward us. Our own husbands would not have known us.

There was the chance, of course, that Leslie might not come as far into the thicket as we had done, and thus miss us, unless he should hear our breathing. At the thought I brought my left arm up in front of my mouth and nose, and Lillian imitated the movement instantly. And then Leslie had parted the bushes at the road, and, though we were well back in the thicket, it seemed as if he were looking directly at us.

But he had not seen us! We realized that when he parted the underbrush to left and right, almost directly in front of us, then turning around, evidently to appraise his position, stepped a little to the left of us, and called cautiously to the chauffeur, who, evidently under instructions, was waiting in the road just in front of the thicket.

"Can you see me at all?" he asked.

"Neither hide nor hair," the man replied flippantly. "But you don't want to do any movin' around. You're pretty close to the road from the sound of your voice."

"I am," Leslie agreed. "But as long as nobody can lamp me it doesn't matter. Now get busy and smear over my footprints, if any, in front here, and walk backward, smearing as you go until you get to the middle of the road. You'd better look at that entrance where our car is, and see if there are any visible tracks of our shoes or of the car. Those babies of Spencer's are as cagey as they make 'em. Don't underestimate 'em!"

"I wont," the chauffeur replied. Would the chauffeur notice the tracks which the station wagon tires had made? The thought was so terrifying that for several seconds we did not need the injunction we had given ourselves against audible breathing. I do not think either of us drew a breath while the man reached the wood path, looked down, started, looked again, and then came rushing back into the road.

"Hey!" he called, but Leslie's man in charge of the big car, silenced him peremptorily.

"Pipe down, you blasted idiot!" he commanded. "Don't you hear those cars coming back?"

CHALLENGE TO U. S. POLICY BY GERMANY SEEN

Pittman Charges Nazis With Laying Groundwork For American Action.

have been made as a justification for a future violation of the Monroe Doctrine."

If such a violation is attempted, said Senator Connally (D., Tex.), "we are prepared to defend it with all of our resources." Connally is a member of the foreign relations committee headed by Pittman.

Endorsing Hull's "sturdy declaration," Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) added, however, that he believed the doctrine also meant the United States should "stay out of Europe."

Secretary Hull disclosed at his daily press conference yesterday the receipt of a German note in reply to this country's statement to the reich June 18 that it would not "recognize" nor "acquiesce" in any transfers of hemisphere territory from one non-American nation to another.

One point of Hull's statement was intepreted instantaneously as a rejection of Japan's pronouncement of a "Monroe Doctrine" for the Far East, another point as a defense of United States policy in aiding Great Britain.

Germany said:

1. That the United States' position was "untenable" since it gave some European countries and denied to others the right to possess American colonies.

2. That there was no "object" to the United States note because Germany had not stated any intention of acquiring American territory.

3. That the Monroe Doctrine of non-interference can be "legally valid"only if Americans don't interfere in Europe.

While not replying directly, Hull said:

1. That the Monroe Doctrine has "not the remotest connection" with the matter of which countries have American possessions, but "did announce that further incursions would not be tolerated."

2. That the doctrine does not resemble those in other areas which are "alleged to be similar," but which seem to be only "the pretext" for conquest.

3. That the United States is not concerned with "the purely political affairs of Europe," but will co-operate wherever possible with other nations to advance "the cause of international law and order."

Nazis Warn U. S. Against Meddling.

BERLIN—(AP)—A renewed assertion that the United States should "not meddle in European affairs." was delivered by a German foreign office spokesman today in commenting on the latest diplomatic exchange between Berlin and Washington.

(In Washington yesterday Secretary of State Cordell Hull revealed that Germany had rejected a United States warning to European nations to keep their hands off the Western hemisphere. In response, Hull declared the United States would uphold the Monroe doctrine. The state department also warned the German embassy that foreign diplomats in this country should avoid public discussion of American policies.)

The foreign office spokesman in Berlin said that the Reich accepts without question the Monroe doctrine but rejects one-sided interpretations of it and resents what he termed United States interference in European affairs.

The spokesman reiterated:

"The Reich has no intention of acquiring territories in the Western hemisphere. Therefore the United States note is 'without object'.

"However, the Reich does not admit that any preferential treatment should be given to any European power by the United States.

"The policy of non-interference laid down by the Monroe doctrine should be reciprocal, which means that the United States should not meddle in European affairs."

SAILORS LAUGH AT ACCUSATION

Dutch Crew Denies Charges of Sabotage, Violence; Wants Back Pay.

(By Associated Press)

SANDUSKY — Twenty crew members of the Dutch freighter Prins Willem II referred derisively today to accusations of mutiny and sabotage threats that resulted in their imprisonment.

All but one of the crew were seized yesterday on a complaint by Capt. C. A. Van Der Eyck that he feared for his life and safety of his ship "in view of certain actions." He reported the group was conspiring to sabotage the ship and Sandusky docks.

Federal immigration authorities announced through J. L. Zurbrick, Detroit district director, that the crew would be charged with engaging in subversive activities. Denouncing the men as "traitors, deserters and mutineers," William G. Bryant, Netherlands consul at Detroit, asserted his government had "washed its hands of them." He said several crewmen claimed allegiance to Germany and had sought funds from that country's consul-general at Chicago.

After visiting the men at Erie county jail, Attorney Alvin F. Weichel of Sandusky said:

"They're laughing about this talk of someone taking the captain's life. All the reports of sabotage and violence are without foundation. All these men want is the back pay due them."

Mansfield Makes It Three Straight Over Mud Hens

Redlegs Still In Middle

Cincy Between First Place Dodgers and 3rd Position New York Giants.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Reds were still in the middle, between the league leading Dodgers and the third place Giants, as they faced the Cubs today but there was a feeling that they would soon be back on top.

Jumping on two hurlers, old Danny MacFayden and Mace Brown, for 14 hits, the Reds trimmed Pittsburgh 5-4 yesterday to sweep a three-game series.

A three-run ninth inning splurge, paced by Lonnie Frey, accounted for the Reds' victory. Frey doubled, a fumble landed Ival Goodman safely and Frank McCormick's single brought in the first of the three markers. Harry Craft singled, scoring Goodman to tie the count and Morrie Arnovich hit into rightfield, to put McCormick over.

The Reds had little trouble finding Dann's twisters but couldn't hit with runners on. They loaded the basis in the fourth without scoring but Goodman connected for his sixth homer, bringing Frey ahead of him, in the fifth.

Meantime, Pirate sluggers were adding to Jim Turner's troubles. Arky Vaughan's infield single and successive doubles by Maurice Van Robays and Vince Di Maggio scored two runs in the second. A walk and two errors by Eddy Joost gave Pittsburgh another in the fifth and Vaughan landed a circuit clout in the sixth with none aboard.

* * *

Joe Beggs finished up for the Reds and was accredited with the victory.

Stage Close League Battle

Blues, Millers Run Neck and Neck.

(By Associated Press)

Minneapolis and Kansas City, running almost neck and neck in the American association's first-place battle, face a mutual disadvantage during the next two weeks—a 12-game jaunt through the eastern half of the circuit.

The team that proves itself the best on the road will go home in the top spot since the two are virtually tied now, the Millers having a four-point margin.

The Millers open against seventh-place Indianapolis and the Blues oppose third-place Columbus.

The Red Birds hopped into the third spot last night with a 6 to 4 victory over Toledo's cellar team. Southpaw Harry Brecheen scattered nine hits to the Hens, one a homer by Henry Steinbacher. The Birds scored all their runs in the first five innings and were never behind after the opening frame.

The victory pushed Columbus ahead of Milwaukee by a single percentage point.

The Louisville Colonels moved ahead of the St. Paul Saints, also by one percentage point, by defeating Indianapolis, 5 to 3.

Only two games were played yesterday.

Indians Open 2-Game Series

Mel Harder to Work on Hill Against White Sox.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Winners in six of eight games with the Chicago White Sox this season, the Cleveland Indians opened a two-game series against the Windy City club at home today, expecting to widen their lead.

Mel Harder, seeking his fourth victory, was nominated by Manager Oscar Vitt to work on the mound for the American league leaders.

* * *

Jimmy Dykes, Chicago pilot who has loudly disputed that the Indians are pennant contenders, assigned Bill Dietrich to the Sox pitching duties.

Bob Feller was expected to battle Jack Knott in tomorrow's game.

Fred Bannerrot Meets Mt. Hope Star in Tourney.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. —(UP)— Defending Champion Ed Tutwiler, Mount Hope, meets Fred Bannerot, Charleston, today in the finals of the West Virginia amateur golf tournament.

Bannerot entered the final round yesterday with a one-up victory over Fred Hawkins, Charleston veteran, while Tutwiler defeated Johnny Chenoweth, Charleston city champion, 2 and 1.

The Bannerot-Hawkins match was the most exciting of the tournament as Bannerot came from behind to gain the victory. Two down on the 11th hole, Bannerot evened the match on the 16th and forged ahead on the 17th green. Sloppy play marred the match between Tutwiler and Chenoweth.

Mrs. Fritz Stifel Quarrier, Wheeling, won the women's title for the 10th time, defeating Mrs. Anne Hobitzell, Parkersburg, the defending champion, 3 and 2.

Braves Wallop Tiffin 11 to 5 As Morse Stars

Braves Second Baseman Gets Four Hits Out of Five Trips to Plate.

By GEORGE SATTLER

BIG CHIEF DEWEY STOVER and his rampaging Mansfield Braves were on the warpath again last night.

Jumping into the lead with three runs in the first frame the Mansfield club kept pounding the two Tiffin pitchers, Snow and Hoppe, for a stinging 16-hit total to chalk up their third straight victory over the Mud Hens, 11 to 5.

Only once in the nine innings did Tiffin threaten the Braves' scoring superiority. That was in the second inning when the Hens managed three runs off Tony Drewek and came within one run of tying up the game.

But the whooping Braves came back with two in the third, three in the sixth, one in the eighth and one in the ninth, keeping the Tiffin outfit comfortably trailing. The Mud Hens only other score came in the fifth inning when they pushed over two runs.

Dick Morse, Braves' second sacker, paced the field in hitting last night, getting four hits out of five trips to the plate. Morse blasted out three singles and one circuit smash.

Sharing hitting honors with the spunky little infielder was Woodling, hard-hitting left fielder. Woodling also lashed out a homer, then added a double to his record He copped two hits out of five journeys to the batter's box.

Woodling is the same Braves star who dazzled the fans at Tiffin during the doubleheader with the Mud Hens Fourth of July by getting seven hits out of eight trips to the platter. He has been doing some sensational batting for the Braves since he joined them last week.

Beals, Mansfield shortstop, was also in the running with a triple and a single out of six trips to the platter. Pitcher Tony Drewek, Catcher Missler and First Baseman Seigbert also were in the running with a double apiece.

Alex Radoumis relieved Drewek at the end of two and two-thirds innings after the Mud Hens had staged their second-inning rally. Drewek gave out ten bases on balls in two and two-thirds frames he toed the rubber for the Braves.

But Radoumis put an end to the rally and held the Tiffin aggregation nicely under control. The Hens got only eight hits off the two Braves' hurlers.

Joseph, Tiffin right fielder, was the only Mud Hen batsman to get more than one hit He managed two singles. Campau and Sanders each got a triple for the Mud Hens.

In the rest of the league last night it was dog eat dog, with the underdogs on the sharp end of the carving knife.

League-leading Lima downed fifth place Fremont 9 to 6, while second-spot Findlay squeezed out a 2 to 1 victory over cellar-dwelling Fostoria.

Tonight the Braves will tackle the hard-hitting Findlay Oilers on the Findlay diamond, but Manager Dewey Stover had not made his selection for the mound duties yet today. The Braves will be after their fourth consecutive win.

* * *

On Sunday the Mansfield outfit will return to the Fairground for a doubleheader with the Tiffin Mud Hens. The first game will be played at 2:30 p. m. and the nightcap at 8:30 p. m.

LA RANCE STILL HOLDS JUNIOR WRESTLING TITLE

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Jules LaRance still held his world's junior heavyweight wrestling title today after pinning Paavo Ketonen, Finnish grappler, before more than 3500 fans in a wild, rough and tumble battle.

A near riot resulted after the match which saw LaRance employ rough tactics to the displeasure of the large crowd. One spectator took a punch at the champion but received a cut eye in the skirmish that followed. Police escorted LaRance to his quarters and later to a downtown hotel.

Wreckers Favored In Tourney

Mansfield Softballers Replace Defeated All-Stars In Marion Golden Cup.

BY SMASHING out a 7 to 2 victory over the Columbus All-Stars in Marion Thursday, the Mansfield Wreckers automatically became the favorites in the annual Marion Golden Cup softball tournament.

According to softball enthusiasts throughout the state, the Columbus All-Stars were the odds-on favorites to cop the Marion tourney easily. But now that they have been set-down by the Wreckers, the Mansfield club has taken over the top position in the future book.

* * *

On Sunday the Wreckers will square off against the Kent Markets of Marion, as the Annual Marion Golden Cup resumes competition. If the Wreckers topple the Markets, they will tangle with the winner of the Shelby vs. Marion Merchants contest.

Jim Fullager and Bob LaPine are slated to go on the mound for the Wreckers Sunday. Fullager will hurl the first game and Lapine will take over the slab in the second if the Mansfielders get a decision over the Kent Markets.

* * *

The Wreckers line-up has been considerably strengthened by the addition of four players from the undefeated Sons of Herman club. Jim Fullager, a pitcher, Harold Aston, a catcher, and Harry Ross, a thirdbaseman, and Ed Henrich, a first baseman, are the Hermans who joined the squad for the tournament.

FIELD OF 16 HORSES ENTERED IN FUTURITY

CHICAGO —(INS)— A field of 16 2-year-olds, including some slated to run in the richer Lassie and Futurity stakes later on, were entered for the $5,000 Hyde Park stakes at Arlington park this afternoon.

Jake Lowenstein's De Kalb, with probable odds at 7-2, appeared to be the outstanding favorite of the lot. Whirlaway and Mysty Isle were priced at 4-1. De Kalb, with a record of sensational recent performances, will carry top weight of 117 pounds.

Heroes and Goats

(By International News Service)

HEROES—Morrie Arnovich, Cincinnati outfielder, whose single in the ninth enabled the Reds to defeat the Pirates. Luke Appleton, Chicago pitcher, whose effective relief hurling gave the White Sox their fourth consecutive victory.

GOATS—Joe Sullivan, Boston pitcher, whose wildness caused the Bees to drop a 20-inning struggle to the Dodgers. Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh shortstop, whose fumble in the ninth paved the way for Cincinnati victory.

WINS REGATTA

HAMPTON Va —(UP)— Tom L Dewitt, Van Wert, O., held the class A championship laurels of the annual Hampton outboard racing regatta today. He maintained an average speed of 39.96 M. P. H in two heats to win.

Favorites Hold Tennis Stage

Marshall Chambers Survives Third Round.

PIQUA —(INS)— The western Ohio tennis tournament swung into the quarter and semi-finals today with favorites continuing to hold the stage after two days of heavy firing in the singles division.

However, the highly-favored doubles team of Stan Frank and L. H. Tinker, of Cincinnati, ran into a red-hot duo composed of Glen Barker, of New Philadelphia, and E. Myers, Piqua, and bowed out of the meet by scores of 11-9, 7-9, 6-3.

Marshall Chambers, top-ranked singles ace, advanced through the third round by eliminating Ken Bentley, Danville, Ill., 6-1, 6-1, while Bob Rau, Monroe, Mich., seeded No. 2, bested S. Frank, Cincinnati, 6-2, 6-0. Harry Zink, Steubenville, seeded number three, whipped Bob Trout, Danville, Ill., 6-3, 6-2

In the junior singles today, Glen Barker, New Philadelphia, faces W. Welage, Cincinnati, while Al Bunis Cincinnati, meets Ken Bentley, Danville, Ill.

AL PATNIK RETAINS AAU MEN'S DIVING CROWN

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.—(AP)—A wide open battle in the 440-yard freestyle race, and probable cinch victories by defending champions Adolph Kiefer in the backstroke and Jim Skinner in the breaststroke awaited spectators today on the third day of the National A. A. U. men's outdoor swimming and diving tournament.

With Al Patnik of Ohio State retaining his three-meter springboard diving title yesterday, and 16-year-old Bunmei Nakama of Hawaii installed as the new National A. A. U. mile ruler, today's two champion performers looked for comparatively easy triumphs.

Finishing up just two points ahead of the Tucker Furnitures last week, the vulnerable JAC'S just managed to keep the top position by winning one, taking the best end of a forfeit on another, and losing two to the Tinkeys.

The Tuckers, who were pressing the Commerce foursome hard, lost a 4 to 1 decision to the Central Fruit men to drop back into third place. Ferguson was the only Tucker to cop a win. He defeated, King, number two man for the Central Fruit.

Swoyer of the Central Fruit led the field in low-scoring by smacking out a 39 for the outside nine at Possum. No other player broke 40 last night.

Fishermen of Mansfield and vicinity, and even from surrounding states, found a fisherman's paradise at Charles Mill waterways during the last week. Hundreds of anglers, fishing from boats or along the shore lines, were rewarded by catches of bass, crappies, blue gills, etc., and many got their limit in just a short time. Looks like the dream of fishermen of this community for good- fishing within a few miles from Mansfield has at last come true.

It is reported that Ohio bears are increasing, especially in the Shawnee Forest area.

Unlike other extinct birds such as the passenger pigeon and the great auk, the Labrador duck had fishy, unpalatable flesh. Yet its great hordes have vanished from the Atlantic coast . . . no one seems to know how or why.

One of the most recent and difficult phases of training carrier pigeons for war service is teaching the birds to fly at night. Like most birds a homing pigeon goes to sleep at night. At present, some Army birds can successfully negotiate up to fifty miles a night, which is way below their daylight cruising range.

If a forest fire were raging over all of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts, the doings of Mr. A. Hitler would at least be placed in just a corner of the front page. Conflagrations which make a raging inferno of an area greater than that of these four New England states DO take place every year, in this country . . . but because the damage is not concentrated in one place, at one time, these catastrophies pass practically unheralded, according to The National Wildlife Federation.

One way to find south when you lack a compass, is to observe the smooth green bark of poplar trees. Exposure to the sun whitens the bark on the south side of the trees more than at any other place.

RIVALRIES FLARE

SALT LAKE CITY—(INS)—The Salt Lake City commission has done nothing about a proposal that donkeys be barred from the streets. The suggestion came from Harry S. Joseph, political leader, when the commission refused to allow the Hogle Gardens zoo elephant to march in a Republican parade. Joseph said he thought it no more than fair to bar donkeys if Princess Alice could not march with her Republican friends, that is, in case the Democrats wish to stage a parade with donkeys.

MARKET SLOW IN RECOVERY FROM HOLIDAY

Stocks Move Irregularily With Trading Lowest In Nearly Year.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Slightly irregular price movements were displayed by leading stocks in today's market.

Holiday apathy, which started before the Fourth of July recess, continued and dealings were the slowest for any session in about a year.

While the home business picture was moderately encouraging, lack of details on the nation's tax program, coupled with indecisive European war news, were blamed partly by brokers for buying restraint.

Rails were still favored among bonds. Commodities were mixed. "Free" sterling rallied in terms of the dollar.

Stocks up a trifle at intervals included General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Glenn Martin, Loft, Southern Railway, Consolidated Edison and Union Carbide.

Narrowly lower were Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, United Aircraft, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, American Telephone and Kennecott.

Those watching merchandising barometers for market clues noted the Federal Reserve summary which placed the country's department store sales for the week ended June 29 at 5 per cent over the corresponding period last year. In the preceding week the year-to-year gain was 10 per cent.

Best increases were reported by the districts of Dallas, Cleveland, Richmond, Philadelphia, Chicago and Kansas City.

NOT JOKING

Toledoan Jumps Into River After Warning Friends.

TOLEDO — (AP) — A friend thought 20-year-old Ellsworth Meier was joking when he asked to be driven "to the river" so he could "jump in."

Richard C. Voorhees, 23, told police he had suggested that Meier, and two girl companions go to the Voorhees home to play bridge, but that Meier said:

"Drive me to the river and I'll jump in."

Regarding the remark as a joke, Vorhees said he drove to the Maumee river. Meier, unable to swim, plunged in.

Voorhees was unable to reach Meier before he drowned.

"I sell Automobiles"—

"When I started to sell cars twenty-five years ago there were few standards of values. Demonstrations, sales talks and explanations were long and complicated.

"Today the public, as well as the distributors and manufacturers of automobiles, recognize certain standards as a basis for comparing quality and performance. Power, construction, finish, speed and materials all have definitions that are recognized and accepted by the public as known values."

THE trend to which this merchant refers toward accepted, dependable standards, applies to other fields also. Take advertising for instance. Twenty-five years ago there was no approved measure for circulation values. Then the Audit Bureau of Circulations was organized in 1914, a national, cooperative association of publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies.

For the benefit of advertisers the Bureau makes an annual audit of the circulation records of all publisher members. Verified reports based on these audits show, for example, how many copies of a newspaper are printed, where they go and how distributed. These and other facts given in A. B. C. reports enable the adviser to compare circulation values and buy advertising on a business-like basis.

Newspapers are ideal for automobile advertising. People read the papers to keep up to date and all car owners and prospects are vitally interested in the latest automobile news. Dealers have found from experience that their newspaper advertising will reach the right people and get attention.

Added to that is the fact that their advertising investment in an A.B.C. newspaper is protected by the verified facts in A.B.C. reports. The result is effective advertising plus assurance that the advertisers get what they pay for.
